OVERVIEW

Andy Mendez concentrates his practice in the areas of commercial litigation, complex litigation, family law, and bankruptcy. He has represented individuals, privately-held companies, and publicly-traded corporations in a wide variety of disputes as plaintiffs, defendants, debtors, and creditors. Andy began his career at the main office of a multi-national law firm before joining Stone Pigman. He has substantial experience defending product liability and toxic tort personal injury claims, including mass and class actions. He has also represented both shareholders and corporations in securities law cases. In the area of insurance law, he represented an insured making a claim under a vessel title insurance policy, the first known claim of its type. He has also represented parties involved in disputes over control of some of the most prominent business in the city and state.

REPRESENTATIVE MATTERS

- Represented major oil company in multiple mass tort actions and putative class actions relating to alleged exposure to toxins from leaking pipeline.
- Defended company from claims brought by disgruntled investor alleging she had been fraudulently induced to make her investment.
- Defended principal from contribution claims brought by investor in failed restaurant venture.
- Represented owner and operator of oilfield waste disposal facilities in putative class action and mass tort actions relating to alleged exposure to toxins.
- Represented housing authority and officers in defense of contract and other claims brought by terminated developer and its officers.
- Represented telecommunications equipment manufacturer in contract and fraud suit brought by bankruptcy trustee of defunct regional service provider.
- Represented, as local counsel, major internet company sued for alleged trademark infringement.
- Represented city in claims brought by statewide retirement systems for statutory contributions.
- Represented, on a pro bono basis, local animal welfare agency in suit alleging property damage in the course of Hurricane Katrina animal rescue operations.
- Represented founder of publicly-traded company in company's bankruptcy case and related adversary proceedings.
- Defended several major pharmaceutical companies in prescription drug product liability actions alleging fatalities and serious personal injuries.
- Representing out-of-state bank in asserting claim against title insurer under title insurance policies, in first known litigated case involving vessel title insurance.
